

Best Practices for Implementing Social Distancing:

While breweries can continue production, distribution and to-go sales at this time, it's critical that you adopt rules to implement social distancing to keep your employees and customers safe. That means maintaining a 6-foot distance.

Front of House could include:

- Encourage customers to call in their orders before they arrive. The CDC recommends no more than 10 mins of close contact
- When customers arrive to pick up beer, have them wait in line 6 feet apart
- Use signage at the door alerting customers to the 6 foot rule and place markers on the floor in waiting areas
- Encourage customers to wait in their vehicles and you can call them in or deliver beer to their car when it's ready
- Check IDs from a distance. When making deliveries, the signature requirement has been temporarily waived- just ask customers to hold up their ID and check it from a safe distance
- Adopt a "no cash" policy
- Remove chairs from seating areas

Breweries should be making all efforts to implement rules to protect employees. Find a detailed description of CDC COVID-19 best practices for workplaces here.
